BUCHAREST IN TROUBLE

Nazis Control Capital And Country Fearful Of Advancing Reds

WASHINGTON, May 13—Of the four satellite countries which received the Allied ultimatum to surrender now, it appears today that Romania is the one most likely to be pried loose of the Axis.

Officials admitted that Axis control of the other three—Finland, Hungary and Bulgaria—is so strong that a revolt is unlikely. The following appraisal was given by experts in Europe:

FINLAND has just rejected the peace terms of Russia. The country is apparently unified in its intentions to disregard Allied overtures and suffer the cost.

HUNGARY was recently occupied by German forces, to prevent collapse of resistance as the Russians approach the Tartar path. The Nazis are in complete control.

BULGARIA has suffered less than any other satellite country. Her army is intact and her traditional territorial claims have been realized. Also, she is the only one of the four satellites which has no border now exposed to enemy invasion. (Russia and Bulgaria are not at war.)

Bulgaria Complacent

Thus Bulgaria is relatively complacent. In fact, officials revealed it was to overcome this complacency that Allied bombers were sent to attack Sofia, the capital.

Yet Sofia is the headquarters of the German army for the southern Balkans, and thus the Bulgarian government is under the thumb of the Nazis.

Romania is in the most desperate position of them all. She lost more than half a million men even before the fall of Odessa and Sebastopol—where the Nazis left the Romanians behind to form the rear guard.

Russia Enter Country

The Russian armies have already passed the frontiers onto Romanian soil. With the fall of Sebastopol, the Romanian Black sea coast is now open to attack by the Russian fleet.

Allied bombers have knocked out seventy-five percent of the production of the Ploesti oil fields, and have hit Bucharest's rail yards, airplane factories and other industries. The next Red drive is expected to be through the

CARPENTER BACKS PEACE TIME TRAINING PROGRAM

CHICAGO, May 13—Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpenter, commanding officer of the 9th naval district, today joined the ranks of those publicly advocating peacetime military training.

Adm. Carpenter urged passage of a national service act to require compulsory military service for at least a year, in an address before the Chicago executives club. He said such service would be the best means of combating unpreparedness.

SENATOR WALSH CLAIMS HAGUE MADE JERSEY'S PATRONAGE DICTATOR

WASHINGTON, May 13—A bitter split among New Jersey Democrats over patronage today brought the charge of Sen. Arthur Walsh (D) N. J., that the Roosevelt administration has made Mayor Frank Hague, "boss" of Jersey City, the patronage dictator of that state.

The row, which has been simmering for months, burst into the open when the senate late yesterday rejected the President's nomination of Patrick McGrath, an alleged Hague man, to be postmaster at Bayonne. This produced an attack on Sen. Walsh and the Edison faction of New Jersey Democrats by Rep. Mary T. Norton (D) N. J., who represents Hague's district.

"Nominations for postmasters are not submitted to me," said Walsh. "I understand that the postoffice department takes recommendations of Mrs. Norton, who represents the whole Mayor Hague machine. The Roosevelt administration has given all appointments to Hague."

Mrs. Norton charged Walsh, who was appointed to his post by ex-Gov. Charles Edison, a Hague foe, with taking advantage of senatorial courtesy to bring about rejection of McGrath's nomination.

"I regret that Sen. Walsh has used the high office in which he was privileged to serve by the grace of his friend, the ex-governor, to hurt an innocent man," said Mrs. Norton. "It would seem that the price he is paying for a seat in the senate covering a very short period, comes rather high."

"However, I venture to predict that Mr. McGrath will hold the respect of the citizens of Bayonne long after the senator will have been forgotten or remembered only as the 'Charley McCarthy' of ex-Governor Edison."

The senate postoffice committee moved rejection of the McGrath

SCIOTO PROBE FAILS TO ALTER BALLOT FIGURE

PORSCMOUTH, O., May 13—An investigation by Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel's office into alleged irregularities in Scioto county Republican Gubernatorial primary voting, today failed to disclose any change in the total vote.

Hummel ordered all Scioto county ballots, poll books and other matter impounded and sent Jack Baxter, a special investigator to Portsmouth Thursday, after he received from Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert a letter asking an inquiry "to prevent any irregularities."

Herbert lost the Republican nomination to Mayor James Garfield Stewart by a slim margin of 2,287 votes. Stewart received some of his heaviest pluralities in Scioto and Hamilton counties.

Baxter, who will report to Hummel today, yesterday said he had never seen "a cleaner set of tally sheets." B. F. Stewart, county election board chairman, said the total for Stewart remained at 3,734, and the total for Herbert, 1,599.

WARD READY TO TALK CONTRACT, UNION ADVISED

CHICAGO, May 13—The first step toward signing a contract with local 20 of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees Union (CIO) was taken by Montgomery Ward & Co. today.

In what may ultimately prove to be the prelude to another show-down fight between the mail order firm and the union, John A. Barr, company attorney in charge of labor relations, notified officials of Local 20 that the firm was ready to enter bargaining negotiations.

Barr asked the union officials to set a date for the first meeting.

Local 20 won the right to act as bargaining agent for the company's 4,900 eligible employees in an NLRB election last Tuesday.

It had bargained for the workers previously but was forced through company action to win a second election to disprove Ward's contention that it no longer represented a majority of the workers.

Wards, through its board chairman, Sewell L. Avery, has declared it will refuse to sign a maintenance of membership contract, nor will it renew the old contract should it contain such a clause.

"STOOGE" OF JOE DIMAGGIO WINS DIVORCE SUIT

HOLLYWOOD, May 13—Declaring that she was "just a stooge," Mrs. Dorothy Arnold DiMaggio, former actress, today held an uncontested divorce from baseball star Joe DiMaggio.

From the beginning, she declared, their marriage was "very difficult" because DiMaggio never acted like a married man, but left me alone and spent his time with his men friends."

Mrs. DiMaggio was granted custody of the couple's three-year-old son and $150 monthly support. The judge also ordered the former New York Yankee star, now in the army, to take out a $10,000 insurance policy for the boy.

WASHINGTON, May 13—The announced retirement of Rep. Martin Dies (D) Tex., from the house where his family had been represented in both world wars raised serious doubt today whether the un-American activities committee he heads will be continued in January.

Dies' decision not to seek reelection in the Texas primary on July 22 because of a serious throat ailment came as a political surprise to most house members. Others close to the colorful 42-year-old Texan reported he had considered returning to his law practice and ranching for months. He has been in congress 13 years.

Some of Dies' colleagues predicted flatly that his retirement spelled death for the seven-member investigating committee which has received $625,500 in house funds in the six years since its creation in 1938. The committee expires with this congress. To continue in January it must be reauthorized by the house with a new appropriation.

USEFULNESS DOUBTED

"The Dies committee has outlived its usefulness," said Rep. Cochran (D) Mo., chairman of the accounts committee which approves committee operating funds. "It will not be continued with my vote."

Cochran, with a scattering of other Democrats, vigorously opposed continuing the committee in this session with an additional $75,000 appropriation.

One deciding factor in speculation on continuation of the committee, however, is whether house control shifts to the Republicans in the November elections.

REHEARSAL FOR LUNGE CHEERING TO CHURCHILL

LONDON, May 13—Prime Minister Winston Churchill exuded new confidence over the imminent invasion of Europe today after watching British troops demonstrate latest techniques of battle.

Churchill, accompanied by Jan Christian Smuts, premier of the Union of South Africa, Sir Godfrey Huggins, premier of Southern Rhodesia, and MacKenzie King, Canadian premier, attended the invasion demonstration at a training station "somewhere in England."

British Tommies displayed their fighting skills for their distinguished visitors in spectacular attacks on simulated enemy positions.

The mock attacks employed the latest types of invasion equipment which cannot be described yet.

The demonstration also showed the newest methods of reducing enemy road blocks and removing booby traps from captured buildings.

PVT. MARTHA WASHINGTON SERVING AS WAC COOK

FORT HANCOCK, N. J., May 13—It must have jolted the recruiting sergeant a bit when he first asked her name, but after all there's been a Washington in every U. S. war since the Revolution so this one couldn't be an exception.

So said WAC Pvt. Martha Washington today. Pvt. Washington of Trenton, N. J. went on duty as a cook at Fort Hancock after a six months' training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

CHICAGO, May 13—Her tearful plea for another chance denied, Mrs. Lola Korona, 25, today began serving a ten-day sentence imposed for leaving her four-month-old son alone while she went to a tavern to seek "diversion."

Which was the result today of a ruling by the appellate court in Albany. The ruling was in the case of Joseph Groner of New York who spurned the $90 a week job because he said he was used to earning two and three times that amount.

The dispute arose when Groner wanted to continue collecting his unemployment insurance while waiting for the right position. The court said he could.

Violent Nazi counterattacks against positions won in the first 36 hours of the Italian offensive were hurled back by Fifth Army troops under Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, fighting side by side with French units.

With heavy fighting raging over the entire 30-mile front Allied forces seized Ventosa, Ceracoli and San Sebastiano as they gained up to three and one half miles within German defense positions.

The Damiano hill mass and a nearby hill were captured "in the face of bitter resistance," a communiqué from Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson announced.

Mediterranean Air Force heavy bombers slashed at German communications as the attack progressed while medium and fighter bombers acted in direct support of assaulting troops.

Fighters and bombers winged over the battleline in constant patrols while naval units offshore turned their heavy guns on communication junctions behind the German front.

declined to comment on the prospect for renewal of the committee. Similarly, House Minority Leader Martin who would succeed Rayburn as speaker should the Republicans take over in January, insisted it was "too early" to consider policy on the matter.

Only one Republican member of the Dies committee, Rep. Mundt of Minn., expressed belief that "if continued" under Republican leadership, the committee would be clothed with new authority—and a new name—to center its attention on government agencies.

Fellows Starnes' Defeat

Dies announcement that he will not run for reelection came only a week after the next ranking Democrat on his committee, Rep. Joe Starnes, suffered defeat in the Alabama primary. Starnes' defeat had been as much a surprise to house Democrats as Dies' retirement.

Both developments came midway in the committee's investigation of the CIO political action committee. latest Dies inquiry in a long series that has included the Bund, Communists, American Fascist groups, Japanese before and after Pearl Harbor, the federal theatre project and the "Peace Now" movement.

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO committee, is under subpoena to appear with the organization's records at a Dies hearing on May 23. Whether or not the CIO issue had any bearing on either Starnes' defeat or Dies' retirement, as suggested by some house members, the committee is expected to proceed with its investigation.

Dies, tall, heavily-built and one of the capital's best-known speakers, came to Washington as a student when his father, Martin Dies, Sr., was a member of the house during World War I. He studied law in the capital, returned to Texas to take up ranching and practice in the legal profession.

He is married and the father of three boys, one of whom, Martin, Jr., is an ensign in the Navy. His home is on the sprawling Dies ranch at Jasper, Tex.

The announcement of his retirement came three days before the deadline for filing his candidacy for reelection, next Monday. Friends emphasized that he had not "withdrawn," inasmuch as he had not previously announced he would be a candidate.

His opponent in the Texas primary is Judge J. M. Combs, of the Texas civil court of appeals.

YOUTH OF 12 ADMITS GROCERY STORE BURGLARY

Too much money for a little colored boy to spend at a circus caused Chief William McCrady to pick up Donald (Skippy) Johnson, 12, of West Huston street, who after grilling by various police officers and sheriff's department, finally confessed breaking and entering the White grocery store in Scioto street, Friday morning.

The chief with Officers Merriman and Shasteen was watching the boys at the circus grounds yesterday when Skippy tried to buy a ticket with a $5 bill. After being taken to headquarters he denied that he had stolen the money but refused to say where he had obtained it. He weakened however about 10 o'clock last night when the prospect of a night in the city prison loomed. He also admitted having stolen two bottles of beer from the grocery the previous day.

Don White, proprietor of the store filed charges against the youth in juvenile court Saturday. He was ordered to appear before Judge Lemuel Weldon on Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Janet Irene Eitel, infant daughter of Private Walter and Mrs. Chloe Forrest Eitel of 136 Pierce Avenue, Lancaster, died Friday at 2 a.m. at the family home after an illness of pneumonia. The child was born January 15, 1944. In addition to the parents, she is survived by four half-sisters and two half-brothers.

Funeral services will be Monday at 10 a.m. at the Mader chapel, West Main street, with the Rev. G. L. Troutman officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel after Sunday noon.

Pvt. Eitel, father of the child, is stationed at Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

MOTORIST ACCUSED

Racing's Triple Crown At Stake for Pensive At Old Pimlico Track

BALTIMORE, Md., May 13 — The triple crown of racing was at stake for Pensive today as the Kentucky Derby winner looked them in eye and made his run in the record-breaking 54th Preakness over the tradition crusted old Pimlico horse track.

With Conn McCreary hunched over his withers in the Calumet colors, the surprise victor in last week's blue grass classic was the favorite against an even half dozen other entries to hit the pay-off wire first and leave only the Belmont for a sweep of the nation's trio of outstanding three-year-old events.

Aside from everything else the winner was to receive a purse of more than $60,000, greatest ever paid for the Preakness, and there was a strong chance for a new high in color and dramatics to be developed in the mile and three sixteenths traveled by the cream of the nation's colts piloted by the hand-picked best of the riders. They rode today at even weight of 126 pounds.

In any case it looked like a slam-bang horse race that might go to any of the seven expected starters, as follows, by post positions, with their jockeys also listed:

Stir Up, Eddie Arcaro. Pensive, Conn McCreary. Platter, Johnny Longden. Alorster, George Woolf. Styrene, Nick Jemas. Gay Bit, Jackie Westrop. Gramps Image, Leonard Bowers.

Approximately 35,000 horse-minded citizens of Maryland and other eastern sectors packed their way into this old Pimlico course to watch Platter and Stir Up, probable second choices, and the rest of the field try to check Pensive and throw supremacy in the three-year-old division into a scramble. But Pensive stood out boldly as the horse to beat, despite his seeming dislike for the track where Gramps Image whipped him in the Chesapeake.

In the event the Calumet star must lose, then Platter seemed most likely to bust down there in front as he has done so often in the past here to win the Futurity and the Walden, among others, although none as a three-year-old. In his only start this year he lost at New York in a tighter for today's big event. Stir Up's place among the short priced starters was based on the smashing triumphs that made him the Derby favorite. Then he was knocked down by Pensive and Broadcloth into a third place finish.

Today's starters, Platter is the only non-Derby horse, which means that Pensive has whipped the rest once at a mile and a quarter. Also of this field only Pensive and Gramps Image were duly nominated. The rest paid $1,500 supplementary fees for a whack at a purse that will be second only to Pensive's end in the Kentucky Derby for three-year-old events this year.

From the human side of the thing, Longden, Arcaro and Woolf all will be seeking their second Preakness victory, as will Ben Jones, Pensive's trainer.

Besides the big pay day, the winning stable will get a case of champagne, a replica of the Woodlawn vase and a blanket of synthetic black-eyed susans. The latter will be yellow daisies with their centers touched up in black. The war has touched the old race to the extent of preventing importation of the susans by plane from California. Hence they made their own susans out of the next best thing.

Controlling Codling Moth in Victory Garden

Released by Central Press Association

FOLLOWING a fairly open winter the indications are that codling moths will be numerous this year on apple trees, including those in Victory gardens. Control of this pest depends upon better and more timely spraying. It is also possible that more applications of codling moth sprays than usual will be necessary.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the first of the series of sprays for codling moth control is applied at the time of the petal fall. This is sometimes referred to as the calyx spray.

KINGSTON

Mrs. Charles Roby was greatly surprised when a group of relatives gathered at her home to help her celebrate her birthday anniversary. A delicious basket dinner served at the noon hour was enjoyed by the following: Mrs. Waldo Muriel and Mrs. Lena Muriel, Mr. and Mrs. Minor Drummond and grandson, all of Stoutsville; Mrs. Joseph Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dawson and children of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. John Ater and children, of near Williamsport; Mrs. Orville Burlin and son, Jerry, and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Roby and daughter, Harriett Ann, of Kingston. Mrs. Roby was the recipient of several nice gifts.

And from this imaginative tale, we turn to David Greenberg and Charles Corbin's very practical "So You're going to Buy a Farm." A book dealing with all the aspects of farm life whether large or small, whether the owner be the country squire type, the novice, or the present city dweller with a yen for growing things. This is a book full of helpful hints and the ways and means of acquiring a new life. The wish to acquire land is inherent in most men as a means of security, health, and peace of mind. Then too the thought of a possible post war depression to out gloom all other depressions may be foreshadowed—in the belief of many—by the return to the land. Certainly they (farmers) are closer to the potential food supply. Both the authors are men who know farming and farm problems, and they have written this book as a guide to possible purchasers of farms.

They discuss, among other things, the part-time farmer, the week-end farmer, how to judge farms, uses of fertilizers, financial questions, (there are samples of a typical farm lease, methods of farm loans, and acquiring title.)

Surely if we are to believe such wonders of new automobiles, helicopters, express highways to link city and country many of the old disadvantages and isolation of the farmer will be completely overcome. Our authors point out moreover that livestock can not be more unpredictable in whims or habits than possible city boss in an office. There are indeed some who make poor unsuccessful farmers, some of whom may have been born to the soil and many "innocents" who have made a go of farming and it is to warn and instruct the latter that this extremely readable book has been written. It will undoubtedly interest many readers to know that the book also contains a discussion of that already much discussed "Plowman's Folly" by E. H. Faulkner.

During the social hour the following program was rendered: reading, Mrs. Mollie Pugh; piano solo, Mrs. John Hardin; readings, Mrs. Will Raub; readings, Mrs. Manning Jones; piano solo, Mrs. John Hardin.

In this condition, Romania is the ripest fruit on the Axis tree. Two factors prevent prompt capitulation:

1. Nazi control of the capital and the nerve center of the country.

2. Romania's fear of the Russians. State department officials admit that the long negotiations at Cairo with Romanian Prince Barbu Spirey were aimed principally at overcoming this deep-seated suspicion. Romanians simply do not believe Russian assurance that frontiers will be respected.

But there seems little doubt that Romania will sue for peace as soon as she is permitted to do so. If not before, it will be when Germany is forced to withdraw troops from Romania for defense against the western invasion.

RETIREMENT OF DIES MAY MEAN COMMITTEE END

Texan's Decision To Quit
Politics Comes As Big Surprise In Capital

declined to comment on the prospect for renewal of the committee. Similarly, House Minority Leader Martin who would succeed Rayburn as speaker should the Republicans take over in January, insisted it was "too early" to consider policy on the matter.

Only one Republican member of the Dies committee, Rep. Mundt of Minn., expressed belief that "if continued" under Republican leadership, the committee would be clothed with new authority—and a new name—to center its attention on government agencies.

Follows Starnes' Defeat

Dies announcement that he will not run for reelection came only a week after the next ranking Democrat on his committee, Rep. Joe Starnes, suffered defeat in the Alabama primary. Starnes' defeat had been as much a surprise to house Democrats as Dies' retirement.

Both developments came midway in the committee's investigation of the CIO political action committee, latest Dies inquiry in a long series that has included the Bund, Communists, American Fascist groups, Japanese before and after Pearl Harbor, the federal theatre project and the "Peace Now" movement.

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO committee, is under subpoena to appear with the organization's records at a Dies hearing on May 23. Whether or not the CIO issue had any bearing on either Starnes' defeat or Dies' retirement, as suggested by some house members, the committee is expected to proceed with its investigation.

Dies, tall, heavily-built and one of the capital's best-known speakers, came to Washington as a student when his father, Martin Dies, Sr., was a member of the house during World War I. He studied law in the capital, returned to Texas to take up ranching and practiced in the legal profession.

He is married and the father of three boys, one of whom, Martin, Jr., is an ensign in the Navy. His home is on the sprawling Dies ranch at Jasper, Tex.

The announcement of his retirement came three days before the deadline for filing his candidacy for reelection, next Monday. Friends emphasized that he had not "withdrawn," inasmuch as he had not previously announced he would be a candidate.

His opponent in the Texas primary is Judge J. M. Combs, of the Texas civil court of appeals.

THIS HELPED TO CRUSH THE NAZIS AT SEVASTOPOL

BY RADIO FROM MOSCOW comes this picture of Russian shelling of the German fortifications at Sevastopol, the key Black sea port which finally fell to the Reds after three weeks of siege. The capture of the historic battle site released two Russian armies for a new onslaught against the Nazi fortress in southeastern Europe. Germans suffered thousands of casualties on Crimean peninsula. (International)

BABY TRIES AN OLD ARMY CUSTO

A COUPLE of fascinated artillerymen in Panama study the sleeping technique of seven-month-old Matthew Wilder, Jr., whom they dubbed the Army's youngest goldbrick. The mystery of how he got there was unfolded by his father, S/Sgt. Wilder (right) of Baltimore, Md. It seems Mrs. Wilder had to go shopping in Panama City, so the sergeant left Juniper on the cot while attending to a chore at the post. (International)

Flying Ace Prims

"ONCE OVER LIGHTLY," says Capt. Robert S. Johnson, newest U. S. flying ace, who hails from Lawton, Okla., after chalking up his 27th victory over the Nazis. Johnson, who is stationed in England, recently tied the record of the South Pacific's leading pilot, Maj. Richard I. Bong. (International)

CHINESE PEASANT WOMEN FLEEING FOR THEIR LIVES

TERRIBLE SITUATION

IT seems that a large part of this suffering country is afflicted by an overdose of ham and eggs. Market reporters from various midwestern areas tell sadly of such an over-supply from pig and poultry farms that the stockyards are overflowing with live pork, and there is a tragic lack of crates and storage space for the eggs. The live hogs pouring steadily into various markets run up high into the thousands, and naturally tend to bring prices down.

Shortage of feed on the farms is given as the main cause for this dumping. The farmers have to market their hogs or else get into trouble with the feeding problem. In many areas bad weather has given them time to take their hogs to market.

The egg situation is not so tragic, but is described as "pretty terrible." In some midwestern areas the egg production has risen 60 to 70 percent. The way those hens insist on laying is incomprehensible, and in some cases cruel. Even a frenzied appeal for egg crates directed to the War Production Board at Washington has failed to relieve the situation.

But don't tell the world about it. It would be unkind to attract the attention of Englishmen who get one egg a month, and Chinese who don't get one a year.

SOLDIERS' THOUGHTS

PEGGY Hull Dueell, a war correspondent in the Pacific area, says that whenever she starts to question the soldiers about themselves and their job, they turn the conversation right around and question her. Their questions run like this:

"Why do we have civilian workers here in jobs which WACS could fill?"

"Why are strikes tolerated at home, in war time?"

"Why do so many Americans at home do exactly what they please, when we have to do what we're told, whether we like it or not?"

The thoughts of soldiers, like the traditional thoughts of youth, are "long, long thoughts." And from them may come important changes.

The original "block buster" was a personal threat to "knock the block off" anybody we disliked, but we've gone far beyond that now.

The truth is that even the highest-ranking American and British leaders have no way of estimating losses with any accuracy. The best they can do is plan for the worst and have enough reserves to fill all gaps.

When Allied forces invaded Sicily heavy losses were expected, and reserves were standing by to replace casualties. Actually, our losses in that operation were very light, much less than expected by United States and British leaders.

One thing is certain: The Allied forces will have plenty of air cover when they move against the continent. That should help cut losses greatly.

This does not mean that the Allies can land without suffering comparatively heavy casualties, but it is pure guesswork to warn that 50 per cent or more of the initial force will be killed or wounded. There can be no answer to that question—and none should be attempted—until actual count is made after the beachhead is established.

• WAR PRODUCTION BOARD CHAIRMAN DONALD M. NELSON is convinced that issuance of the "freeze" on civilian production in tight labor areas during his absence recently in Florida for a brief rest came as result of intense pressure by the military.

The Army has been fearful that WPB would let the bars down too soon, despite established policy to the contrary, and sought to erect an iron-clad barrier against any appreciable revival of civilian output.

Issuance of the ill-conceived "freeze," however, brought the wrath of Congress down upon Nelson's head. It was too infeasible and would virtually have forestalled any boost in civilian production, even where it would not interfere with the war effort. Idle facilities and manpower were in prospect.

Nelson sees eye-to-eye with the military on the need for keeping war production at a high pitch, and agrees that civilian production must be soft-pedaled until the invasion's fate is decided. However, he will seek to accomplish the same end by more palatable directives.

• MAJ. GEN. LEWIS B. HERSHHEY, national draft director, is one of the important Washington officials who insist on writing their own speeches instead of using "ghost" writers.

Hershey's position is that what he says in official statements affects the lives of so many men and their families that he must get his ideas stated exactly as he wants them.

His assistants say he has found no one who can do the writing job to his satisfaction, and, anyway, the general does a highly creditable piece of writing himself.

That Hershey must be careful in his statements is illustrated by the fact that members of local draft boards read accounts of his speeches—and have a habit of interpreting them as official pronouncements, putting them into effect without awaiting further directions from Washington.

• IN THE WELTER OF PLANS for post-war reconversion, the little business man is coming in for his share of attention and, according to present plans, will be in the front row when the signal is given for the "big push" to civilian production.

A definite movement is under way in the Senate to divorce the Smaller War Plants corporation from its parent body, the War Production Board.

Several senators who plan to sponsor such action contend that WPB is prejudiced against allocating sufficient war contracts to small business in production essential to the war effort. Moreover, they maintain that WPB is also lax in according favored treatment to small firms in industries now being converted to partial civilian production.

They are adamant in holding that small business should be given preferential treatment because of the lack of large resources and their limited capital. Big business, they say, can hold its own, and they cite figures showing that 70 per cent of war production is controlled by approximately 100 large firms.

DIET AND HEALTH

Elements of Balanced Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

LET NO ONE suppose from the speculations which follow that I am advocating anything other than a balanced diet. A balanced diet should include in some meal of the day: (1) a fresh fruit (preferably orange, grapefruit, lemon or lime juice); (2) an animal protein—milk, eggs or meat; (3) a cereal or grain—oatmeal, rice or bread; (4) one or two vegetables—one preferably green or pigmented—which means a choice of peas, beans, carrots, asparagus, cabbage, potato, spinach, celery, onion, corn, soybeans, tomatoes, etc.; (5) roughage—from fruit pulp, vegetable fiber, celery, salts.

If you eat some of each item you will get all the vitamins, minerals and protein building and replacement material you can use. You will probably get all the energy—calories—you need, but if not this is easy to remedy by adding those articles that man's ingenuity and industry has perfected for this purpose—sugar and butter and salad dressing and jellies and dessert and extra helpings.

The key to the single complete food, according to the results of scientific inquiry, is whether its protein has the essential amino acids. All proteins are made up of a complex grouping of amino acids. Ten of these are essential for health and growth. Since our bodies are mostly protein, when there is waste it must be replaced with protein, and the protein must contain eight of the essential amino acids. One of them, arginine, is absolutely essential for growth, but after growth is complete the adult probably does not need this one.

Meat, milk, eggs, Brazil nuts and soybeans contain all the essential amino acids. They are the only foods man could subsist on, from birth to death without eating anything else.

Cereals and potatoes would qualify except they lack growth factors.

If the worst comes to the worst we may have to get down in this country to being soybean eaters. I understand you can grow enough in a flower pot on your window sill, if you water it regularly to furnish you with a complete protein. But, "Perish forbid," as Archie says, we will ever come to that.

This is the balanced diet used by man in a state of civilization, where agriculture and industry attended the uniting Conference of Methodism.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Blair landed at the school just before dusk, every nerve in her body crying out for rest. Crossing the clearing, she went directly to her father's office in the Hall. In the half darkness of the room she caught the smell of cigarette smoke; then suddenly she gave a quick gasp of surprise—a dim figure was seated in the dark, watching her.

Hurriedly Blair switched on the light—Irina Meredith sat looking up at her from her father's chair. Beneath the light, Blair saw that Irina's face was white and drawn. With an effort she smiled. "Too bad you had to sit here in the dark. Were you looking for Father?"

"For me the dark is better." Irina laid down her cigarette. "No, I was waiting for you. I need your help. I recalled that you were the first woman I saw when I came here, and you may be the last I shall see when I go."

"You're going away?"

"With your help, yes. I want you to fly me out of here. Anywhere. The farther the better—the farthest place won't be very safe."

Blair searched the haunted face. "I don't quite understand."

"Will you if I tell you this—I'm a German agent."

"A spy!"

"You could call me that."

Incredulously Blair burst out, "And you are to marry Rodney Selkirk!"

"Don't judge." Irina raised one small hand. "You love your father very much. I love mine. What I've done, I did to save his life—just as you would."

The tired face turned toward the window, and the voice went on. "Last summer, when Rod came to New York, I introduced him to a German radio engineer—an old friend of Father's. He saw at once that Rod was in love with me—it wasn't hard to see—and when he heard that Rod was in charge of the company's work for the Hudson's Bay territory, he was very friendly. He had us to dinner, put Rod up at his club, took us to shows. He won Rod's sympathy by telling how he had been hounded out of Germany when the Nazis came to power."

Blair lighted another cigarette.

"After Rod went back, this man came to me and told me openly he was a member of the German Gestapo, working with the American fifth column. He reminded me that my father was in Austria and showed me a letter saying that Father was under surveillance for helping three friends, wanted by the Nazis, escape into Switzerland. Then he gave me a choice: I was to go to Canada, marry Rod Selkirk, and carry out the orders of a man he would be safe."

Irina shook her head. "Your father has no idea of the truth. I swear to that! Good-by until tomorrow."

In a darkened room above them a Nazi might have been lost in reverie; at last he lifted the whimpering dog in his arms and closed the door behind him.

The sun sank lower. Slowly a shaft of light crept over the cabin floor and touched to golden brilliance the head that lay so quietly on the table.

and toboggan were gone, but the door was unbolted, and, taking off her parka, she settled herself to wait. But barely had she lighted a cigarette when the pup looked up with a low growl, and at the sound of footsteps, Irina ran to the door, calling: "Colin?"

"Wrong!" answered Jonathan Dove as he opened—and closed—the door.

The cabin had become deathly cold as he walked slowly toward her.

"I have been looking for you, Irina." His eyes held a look of overwhelming sadness, but his mouth was a straight line. Then again the quiet, regretful voice, "Don't bother lying to me. I heard you and Blair Benedict talking last night."</

It was decided that the grange would have its cookie contest at the regular meeting of June 9.

Candles and Spring flowers were used on the tables where lunch was served by Mrs. M. M. Bowmar and her committee.

The hall had a colorful background of baskets of Spring flowers and shrubs.

Miss Southward Resigns
Miss Clara Southward, social worker for the Circleville Benevolent association for the last 31 years, tendered her resignation as social worker at the regular meeting of the association in the city cottage. Miss Southward said that she had not the physical ability to continue her work, and expressed her wish that a successor may be found very soon.

In her report for the month of April, Miss Southward mentioned that the work of the association did not begin until the middle of the month. The many donations that had come to the cottage during the eight weeks when the social worker was off duty, were sorted with the assistance of Mrs. C. G. Stewart and Miss Florence Gunton and ready for 'open house' on Monday, April 17. Twelve applicants arrived during the afternoon, and on Wednesday, 12 others appeared. The following week there were almost as many callers.

In April the association assisted 37 families. The supplies distributed included 26 pairs of shoes; 16 women's coats and jackets; 57 dresses; 185 other garments and 45 miscellaneous household articles. The thanks of the association go to all donors.

No visits were made during the month, office interviews with applicants totaling 43; interviews with consultatives, 11, and several notes were written asking clients

Churches To Pay Tribute To Mothers

Special Sermons, Musical Programs Arranged For Sunday Services

Church of the Brethren
Tribute will be paid to mothers
Sunday in most Circleville churches in celebration of Mother's Day. Special sermons will be preached and appropriate musical programs have been arranged.

In the Methodist church at the morning service the Rev. Clarence Swearingen will have as his topic,
"Behold Thy Mother." The choir will sing the anthem, "No Other."

The Rev. Carl L. Kennedy at the Presbyterian church will talk on
"A Mother Thinks Aloud." Special music for the service includes the anthem, and the organ selections,
"Marche Triomphale," "The Old
Refrain," "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and "Finale" played by Miss Abbe Mills Clark.

"A Mother's Influence" is the topic of the morning sermon by the Rev. J. E. Huston at the First U. B. church.

A Mother's Day program will be presented in connection with the Sunday school at the Pilgrim church and at the regular morning worship hour the Rev. James
O. Miller will discuss, "Home,
Mother and Heaven."

At Trinity Lutheran church the Rev. G. L. Troutman will discuss
"Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother" at the morning service.
Carl C. Leist, chorister, and Mrs.
Karl Hermann, organist, have arranged special music. A special syllabus has been prepared for each worshipper.

The Rev. Mr. Troutman in commenting on the Mother's Day event said: "America may boast of her productive lands, her armies, her government, her factories, her institutions and inventions, but if she cannot also boast of her mothers she is on the downward path. Many of us can say we have been richly blessed with a God-fearing mother. Go to church Sunday and say, Thank You, Lord God, for my mother."

Obituary

Eva Catherine Wilhelm, daughter of Phillip and Catherine Gardner Wilhelm was born in Ross County, March 15, 1868 and departed this life May 15, 1944 at her home in Pickaway township at the age of 81 years, 1 month and 20 days. She was united in marriage to Alvin Musselman September 28, 1899, and to this union was blessed with one son, Albert Musselman of Pickaway township, of whom she resides at her present home. She leaves to mourn her departure, one grandson, Marvin Musselman, and two great grandchildren, Connie and Ned Musselman of Pickaway township. Three brothers and three sisters, Adam of Toledo, Michael, of Chillicothe, R.F.D.; Ernest, of Chillicothe; Mrs. B. A. Kocher, of Chillicothe, and Mrs. Nellie Mace, of Williamsport, a large host of relatives and friends. Her husband preceded her in death on October 28, 1931. She was a member of the Morris U. B. church and was a faithful attendant, until failing health compelled her. She was a kind and loving companion and mother, a good neighbor and made friends with all with whom she came in contact with, for her sunny disposition and friendliness of nature. There were few among those who knew her, none among her nearest friends, who remembered without a feeling of great regret.

Their loss is consolation in the knowledge, that she awaits our coming, with the same welcomeing smile as of old beyond the gates of Heaven, which is fully open for her entrance. "Into thy hands, O, Lord" for "The best will is our Father's will."

Sleep on dear mother. Thy work is o'er. Those faithful hands, Need toll no more.

All is dark within our dwelling. Lonely are our hearts today. For the one we loved so dearly, Has forever passed away.

Sweet and peaceful be thy rest, Forget you we can never. God will be with us always best, His will be done forever.

Dear Mother, we will miss you. In many ways to come. In the flowers that you have planted. To beautify our home.

No more the little grandchildren, Can sit upon their knee, And stroke her hair and say, Dear Grandma, how I love thee.

But then we can not bring her back, We know it would be vain. For though it is our greatest loss, And her eternal gain.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown in our bereavement, in the death of our beloved mother, to the doctor to all who gave flowers to the minister, and to all who in any way, assisted at the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Musselman and Family.

Power of Local Draft Board Restored Under New Program

LONG PERIOD OF "DIRECTIVES" APPEARS AT END

Discretion To Determine "Necessity", "Essentiality" Now Restored

CONCENTRATION ON YOUTH

Lighter Quotas Certain In Districts Where 18 To 26 Pool Nears Exhaustion

The new Selective Service program, expected to stabilize draft policies for at least six months, appeared today to have reassured completely the autonomy and power of the local board.

Informed officials interpret the regulations as concluding a long period in which the activities of the 6,400 local Selective Service units were circumscribed by "commands" and "directives" from the war effort.

One of the highlights of the so-called "permanent" program, as enunciated by National Selective Service Chief Lewis B. Hershey is the delegation of broad discretion to local boards to determine what is "necessary" and "essential" to the war effort.

Except for men in the 18 through 25 age brackets, it is the function of the local boards to determine the status of a registrant with respect to an activity in war production or in support of the war effort, Maj. Gen. Hershey said. Deferments for the younger men, who are in "greatest immediate need" by the armed forces, must be approved by state draft directors.

Assured Deferment

Men 26 through 29 years of age are assured deferment "for the time being" if they are "necessary" men in essential activities, while those 30 years old or over only have to be "regularly engaged in" an essential war or war supporting job to receive a deferment for an "indefinite period."

Hershey instructed local boards to consider the War Manpower Commission's list of 35 essential activities as a "guide" in making occupational deferments, but added that they are warranted "under present circumstances" in recognizing locally needed pursuits.

Cutbacks Considered

The Selective Service director, in taking cognizance of current cutbacks in war production with resultant unemployment in some cases, illustrated further the autonomy of local boards with this comment:

"If the local boards should find at the moment that a man could not make any contribution to the war effort except a job in a soda fountain, it could defer him. It would be unusual, but that man has to feed his family. Local boards should take into account the local employment situation."

Hershey warned that such an instance, however, would be the exception and not the rule. Generally, he said, if a registrant is not participating in the war effort "he's going to be moved into a uniform."

In determining whether men 26 through 29 years of age are "necessary" workers entitled to deferments, local boards follow this regulation:

"1. He is, or but for seasonal or temporary interruption could be, engaged in war production or support the war effort.

"2. His removal would cause a serious loss of effort therein.

"3. He cannot be replaced."

Hershey said draft calls in the next few months will be adjusted nationally to the supply of younger men, with lighter quotas levied where the pool of under 26 year old registrants is nearing exhaustion.

Power of Local Draft Board Restored Under New Program

LONG PERIOD OF "DIRECTIVES" APPEARS AT END

Discretion To Determine "Necessity", "Essentiality" Now Restored

CONCENTRATION ON YOUTH

Lighter Quotas Certain In Districts Where 18 To 26 Pool Nears Exhaustion

The new Selective Service program, expected to stabilize draft policies for at least six months, appeared today to have reassured completely the autonomy and power of the local board.

Informed officials interpret the regulations as concluding a long period in which the activities of the 6,000 local Selective Service units were circumscribed by "commands" and "directives" from the central authority.

One of the highlights of the so-called "permanent" program, as enunciated by National Selective Service Chief Lewis B. Hershey is the delegation of broad discretion to local boards to determine what is "necessary" and "essential" to the war effort.

Except for men in the 18 through 25 age brackets, it is the function of the local boards to determine the status of a registrant with respect to an activity in war production or in support of the war effort, Maj. Gen. Hershey said. Deferments for the younger men, who are in "greatest immediate need" by the armed forces, must be approved by state draft directors.

Assured Deferment

Men 26 through 29 years of age are assured deferment "for the time being" if they are "necessary" men in essential activities, while those 30 years old or over only have to be "regularly engaged in" an essential war or war supporting job to receive a deferment for "an indefinite period."

Hershey instructed local boards to consider the War Manpower Commission's list of 35 essential activities as a "guide" in making occupational deferments, but added that they are warranted "under present circumstances" in recognizing locally needed pursuits.

Cutbacks Considered

The Selective Service director, in taking cognizance of current cutbacks in war production with resultant unemployment in some cases, illustrated further the autonomy of local boards with this comment:

"If the local boards should find at the moment that a man could not make any contribution to the war effort except a job in a soda fountain, it could defer him. It would be unusual, but that man has to feed his family. Local boards should take into account the local employment situation."

Hershey warned that such an instance, however, would be the exception and not the rule. Generally, he said, if a registrant is not participating in the war effort "he's going to be moved into a uniform."

In determining whether men 26 through 29 years of age are "necessary" workers entitled to deferments, local boards follow this regulation:

"1. He is, or but for seasonal or temporary interruption could be, engaged in war production or support the war effort.

"2. His removal would cause a serious loss of effort therein.

"3. He cannot be replaced."

Hershey said draft calls in the next few months will be adjusted nationally to the supply of younger men, with lighter quotas levied where the pool of under 26 year old registrants is nearing exhaustion.
